

Estancia Los Araucanos is located in La Pampa province, the rolling plains region southwest of the province of Buenos Aires. This 46,000 acre private ranch encompasses a varied landscape of grassy plains, sand dunes, creeks, and woodlands that provide the ideal conditions for the existence of several big game species. Game animals hunted year-round include Russian Boar, Black Buck Antelope, and Puma while Red Stag are available March-May.

Hunting

Our Russian Boar hunts typically occur at night by waterholes during the full moon phase. We also conduct long ranging Puma and boar hunts on horseback with tracking dogs that trail the scent of the quarry. Led by expert guides, the Red Stag and Black Buck hunts are conducted by stalking the numerous herds that inhabit the diverse landscape. All our operations at Los Araucanos are strictly fair- chase hunts – this is not a high fence shoot. Excellent wing shooting is also available at Los Araucanos. Numerous Eucalyptus groves provide excellent roosting habitat for the Spot-Winged pigeon. This translates into some exciting pigeon shoots which are conducted over established flights paths and, often, with the assistance of decoys. For the avid upland hunter, perdiz shooting over pointing dogs is not to be missed at Los Araucanos. The incredible resource here is made up of four different species of perdiz- Red Winged, Elegant Crested, Brushland, and Spotted. The wing shooting option makes for a complete hunting experience as our clients are able to enjoy both small and big game hunting at once on the same property.
